

CHOOSE YOUR CHARACTER

Role-playing games (RPGs) are a kind of “let’s pretend” – but you don’t need to dress up and run around – you play together with family or friends, using your imaginations to decide where you’ll go, who you’ll meet and what you want to do.

Your first step in playing an adventure is to use your imagination and create a character of your own. Use this character sheet to choose a name, a species, a few abilities, and draw a picture of your new character.

Scan this QR code to learn how to start your first adventure.

NAME: Tell us your character’s name.

---

SPECIES: Choose a species.

Your character can either be a fantasy species (such as a dwarf or an elf), an animal, alien, robot, or something completely new.

---

HEALTH: This is where you keep track of damage to your character.

---

ABILITIES: Give your character some abilities (in the boxes), these will help determine whether you succeed when making choices.

- Choose one ability you’re extremely good at and give it +3
  - Choose two abilities you’re good at and give them a +2
  - Choose one ability you’re only okay at and give it a +1
  - Choose one ability that you’re neither good or bad at and give it a 0
  - And finally choose something you’re not so good at and give it a -1

BACKGROUND: Is your character happy or grumpy? Are they vegetarian? Do they want to become a chef? Here you can give your character some extra details about who they are and why, maybe think about how your abilities might affect your character’s personality and backstory.

---

STUFF: What clothes or tools do you have to help you on your quest? You can also use this to keep track of things you collect during your adventure.

---

Once completed, your character serves as your representative in the game, your avatar in the imaginary world.
